PENNSY RATES REDUCED

1000-Mile Book Will be Sold for $20.00

BEING TRANSFERABLE

One-way Fares on all Lines East of Pittsburg and Erie Will be Reduced to 2 1-2 Cents Per Miles.

TO GO INTO EFFECT ABOUT NOV. 1

Philadelphia, Aug. 1.—Important changes in passenger rates were announced by Fourth Vice President John B. Thayer, of the Pennsylvania railroad following a meeting of the board of directors of that corporation.

The company has decided to reduce the maximum one-way fares from 3½ and 3 cents to 2½ cents a mile. This action will involve a readjustment of all through fares from the south, and owing to the vast amount of work entailed by reason of the change, the new rate of fare will not become operative for some time, probably November 1. It is assumed that the competing lines which reach New York by way of Cincinnati and Louisville will meet the Pennsylvania Railroad companyf's reduction by a readjustment of fares, so that all southern passenger traffic, whether by way of Washington, Cincinnati or Louisville, will be on an equal basis.

The company will also, on September 1, place on sale 1000-mile tickets, valid only on its lines east of Pittsburg and Erie, at the flat price of $20. These mileage tickets will be transferable. No change is to be made in the price of the interchangeable mileage tickets now sold by the company, which are not transferable, and upon which a deposit of $10 above the regular price is required. It is estimated that 50,000 interchangeable mileage books are presented daily on the various roads, and of this number 65 per cent. are used on the lines of the Pennsylvania railroad.

The company's announcement, made through Vice President Thayer, is as follows:

"The Pennsylvania Railroad company, on September 1, will place on sale 1000-mile tickets at the flat price of $20, or two cents a mile, and these tickets will be valid on all its lines east of Pittsburg and Erie. The interchangeable mileage book, at present the only form of mileage sold by this company, is valid over six railroad systems besides the Pennsylvania, but is non-transferable, and, therefore, requires a deposit of $10 to guarantee its exclusive use by the purchaser. The new ticket will be accepted for travel upon this company's lines only, upon presentation by anyone, making it available for use by individuals, firms, families, or associations.

"The management has also decided to reduce the maximum one-way fares to 2½ cents per mile upon all passenger traffic east of Pittsburg and Erie, although under its charter the company has the right to maintain a charge of three cents per mile for through passengers, and 3½ cents for way passengers. As the inauguration of this policy will involve a vast amount of preparation, the exact date when it will go into effect cannot now be determined, although it is expected this will not be later than November 1.

"This reduction of fares has been the subject of serious consideration for a year past. The company has expended large sums to build relief lines upon which freight trains should be moved, that this class of traffic might be diverted from the present main lines and thus secure less liability of delay to the company's largely increased passenger service. The company has believed that the time would come when a much larger traffic sould be handled profitably with a reduction of the present rates of fare.

"A reduction so far reaching in its consequences could only be entered upon after all possible elements and forces had been considered and thoroughly weighed. Nevertheless, the decision to take the step here indicated was practically reached last February. In view of the pending litigation at Harrisburg concerning the interchangeable mileage ticket, it was deemed advisable that the announcement of the company's purpose in this regard should be deferred until the decision of that case, which, it had been confidently expected, would have been reached before this. As it is now evident that this case cannot be decided until late in autumn, the company has determined to postpone this announcement no longer.

"The new interchangeable mileage ticket, provided the other railroads interested are willing, will be continued on sale."

RAIN INJURES WHEAT,

Centre County Farmers Unable} to Get Sheaves Under Cover.

Centre county farmers are much alarmed lest they will not be able to thresh their wheat. The crop is the largest cut in years. The grain had just been put into shock, with very little of it in the barn, when the big rainstorm of July 16, occurred, and since then there has been at least one hard rain every twenty-four hours, so that the grain has not had any chance to dry.

In fact, the rains have been of such frequent occurrence that the farmers are afraid to open out the grain to give it an opportunity to dry, and the result is that it is all thoroughly soaked in the shock and some of it has already sprouted. A few farmers in the county succeeded in getting most of their crops in the barn before the rainy spell began, but the larger proportion of the wheat is still in the fields.

But while the rain is proving very bad for the wheat, it is a good thing for corn and potatoes, and fields that looked as if they would yield only half a crop several weeks ago now appear fine, with promise of big yields.

The oats crop is also a good one and almost ready to harvest. Late grass will yield a good crop of hay, though the early crop of clover was quite short.

Daniel Hardy Passes Away After an Illness of Two Weeks.

Daniel Hardy, a veteran of the Civil War, and long a resident of Tyrone, died at 5.40 o'clock Monday morning at the home of his son-in-law, William Wiser, 1548 Columbia avenue. He had been ill for two weeks and death was caused by gangrene.

The deceased was born in Franklin county November 8, 1837, and at death he was aged 68 years, 8 months and 22 days. Most of his life was spent in and near Tyrone. He was a laborer by occupation. During the Civil War he served his country as a soldier in Company D, thirty-first Pennsylvania regiment, and participated in the great engagement at Fredericksburg and in other battles.

He was first married to Catharine Williams, and from this union five sons and two daughters survive him. They are J. C., Samuel and James Hardy, Mrs. William Wiser and Mrs. George Bruss, of Tyrone; Daniel Hardy, of Pittsburg; and Thomas Hardy, of Bolivar. His second wife was Mertie Welsh, and their children are Cora, Angus and Zim, all of Tyrone. Mr. Hardy is also survived by three sisters, Mrs. Cowher, of Port Matilda; Mrs. Miller, of Bellwood; and Mrs. Carbaugh, of Kirksville, Illinois.

The funeral took place from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wiser, Columbia avenue, at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Interment in Tyrone cemetery.

Blanchard Citizen Dead.

Mr. Clark was aged about 65 years. He was a blacksmith by trade. He was a member and trustee of the Methodist church of this place, a member of the Blanchard lodge, I. O. O. F., and of George Harleman post, G. A. R. of Blanchard, having had an honorable record as a soldier of the civil war. No Hearse Large Enough.

Anderson, Ind., July 30th.—Three thousand people were attracted to Anderson cemetery by the burial of Joseph Rodecap, a farmer, and the heaviest man in Madison county. Mr. Rodecap weighed 460 pounds. His coffin was three feet wide twenty-eight inches deep and seven feet long. No hearse could carry it, because of its size, and a wagon was used as a funeral car. Ten men were required to carry the coffin and sixteen men to lower it into the grave. Mr. Rodecape died of cerebral embolism. He was 51 years old.

STANDARD OIL IN A SUIT

Inspector Accuses Atlantic Refining Company

HEARING FREE SYSTEM

Refining Company Accused Before Attorney General Carson of Erasing and Changing Oil Inspection Brands.

JUDGE JAMES G. GORDON'S ARGUMENT

Philadelphia, Aug. 1.—Complaint was made to Attorney General Hampton L. Carson by former Judge James Gay Gordon, with the request that suit be entered, to restrain the Atlantic Refining company from obstructing Captain Frank G. Edwards, oil inspector of Philadelphia county, in the performance of his duties.

Mr. Gordon said his action was taken "to defend the rights of the commonwealth and to protect the public from being openly cheated by the Standard Oil company, of which the Atlantic Refining company is part and parcel."

In their depositions Mr. Gordon and Captain Edwards aver that the Atlantic Refining company has endeavored to practically abolish the office of oil inspector, a position to which Mayor Weaver appointed Captain Edwards March 6 of this year, to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Peter Lane, Jr. The office is authorized by an act of assembly of 1874, which provides that all oils [illegible] and not reaching a 110-degree fire test shall be prohibited from sale.

Judge Gordon in his statement declared that the Atlantic Refining company paid Inspector Lane a lump sum of $4000 instead of the fees required by law; that Mr. Lane had never attended to the duties of his office, and that the inspection brands were "handed over to employes and agents of the company to use as they saw fit."

"Mr. Edwards found when he went into office," said Judge Gordon, "that it was conducted by a clerk and a deputy inspector, one employed by the Atlantic Refining company, which is nothing more than another name for the Standard Oil company."

"Employes of the Standard Oil company," continued Judge Gordon, "erased inspector's brands at the command of their superintendent. Edwards discovered further that oil 150 degrees fire test, stenciled on cars by employes of the company, was but 110-120-130 degrees test. Detectives were employed, and they followed delivery wagons about, and they found that storekeepers were paying various prices for oils marked at various tests, when in reality there was only one brand in the wagon. Since this application has been made the company has issued orders only a week ago that the inspectors' brands shall not be removed from the tank wagons."

In summing up Judge Gordon said: "Captain Edwards in the performance of his duties, expends $800 per month. He employs 13 inspectors and four boys. Under the act of 1874 he is compelled to inspect oils, it being a penal offense if he is negligent in his duties, and he is liable to indictment and punishment. It is obligatory upon him to test and brand all oils sold, in the interest of the people. What is he to do? Is he to continue in his office under this condition if his inspection fees are refused? I will ask this commonwealth to interpose because his duties are obligatory and a failure to perform is a criminal offense. It will be impossible to continue if his fees are not paid, and he only has the alternative of quitting his office or be indefinitely denied his fees."

The attorney general asked that the complaint be filed in writing, and fixed August 14 for another hearing.

Company B. Arrives Home.

Company B. 5th Regiment N. G. P. returned home Saturday from their ten days outing at Camp Henderson, Gettysburg. They reached here on a special train from Tyrone at 5.30 a. m. The boys report having a fine time.

On Thursday evening the Company held an election of officers to fill the vacancies made by the advancement of Capt. Taylor to the rank of Lieutent Colonel. The election resulted in making Philip Garbrick, Captain, Samuel D. Gettig, 1st Lieutenut and Richard Tyler, 2nd Lieutent.

The camp was a success in every particular and Company B. made an excellent showing.

SMITH—SHOWERS.

Pretty Nuptial Event at the home of J. C. Showers.

The home of Jackson C. Showers on East Bishop street was the scene of a very pretty nuptial event on Tuesday evening when his daughter Bess Estella Showers was united in holy bonds of wedlock to Mr. George Thurston Smith of Buffalo, New York.

The ceremony took place at 6 p. m., and was performed by Rev. James B. Stein, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church the ring ceremony being used. The bride was given away by her brother, Harry Showers, of Pittsburg. She was attired in a beautiful gown of white net over white taffeta silk. She looked very pretty and attractive.

The groom was attired in conventional black and was attended by his brother, Dr. Samuel Smith, of Derry, Pa., as best man. The house was very beautifully decorated and the happy couple took their positions before the altar to the music of Lohengrin's wedding march as played by Miss Berenice Knache of Harrisburg.

The bride's popularity was fully attested by the many beautiful and useful presents which she received.

After a delightful wedding supper the bride and groom departed on the 8:16 train for their wedding tour. They will visit New York, Philadelphia and Asbury Park. At the latter place, the groom's father owns a cottage and here Mr. and Mrs. Smith will remain the balance of the summer.

The groom is a graduate of State College and is now a telephone engineer with the Independent Telephone Company of Buffalo, N. Y.

U. S. Regulars.

About seventy-five Bellefonter's availed themselves of Monday evening to the opportunity of viewing a battalion of 12 regiment regular U. S. infantry, which were encamped about a quarter of a mile below the school house at Milesburg.

The battalion consisted of companies A, B, C, and D and were in care of Mayor Andrews, who has brought them, very successfully from Fort Porter, Buffalo and New York and who is now taking them to Mount Gretna, where they will participate in the sham war that is to take place there.

It certainly made a verp imposing sight the many A shaped tents scattered about like so many lost sheep, intermingled with the camp and cooking fires.

The boys all seem in the best of spirits and are satisfied with their grub and especially Uncle Sam. The boys were very hospitable and gave many of the guests souvenirs who commented greatly on generosity.

The commanders of the companies are according to the seniority. Co. A, Capt Harbarson, Co. D, Knabenshue, Co. B, Lieut. Wright, Co. C. Diller, Adjutant Smith, Quartermaster Lieut Smith, Sargt. Mayor Harper.

We also might state that Capt. Knabenshu is the brother of Roy Knabenshue the celebrated aeronaut whose exploits have made him world renowned.

Camp was broken at 6:15 Thursday and all started for Lock Haven where they took the train for Mount Gretna

A Narrow Escape.

The passenger steamer, Majestic, which carried Benjamin Bradley of Bellefonte, and Prof. George P. Bible, his son-in-law and wife, to England, made a narrow escape from being wrecked between Queenstown and Liverpool on its way out.

On account of the fog, the liner was running at half-speed when the lightship Conningbeg, was sighted only a few feet ahead. In the twinkling of an eye the liner's rudder was put hard apart, and the starboard side grazed the lightship.

The shock threw the 2,000 passengers into a panic and boats were manner to save the passengers. It was, however, promptly discovered that the ship had suffered no serious damage and it continued on its course to Liverpool.

Death of Samuel Noll.

Samuel Noll, a well known citizen of Pleasant Gap, died in the Bellefonte Hospital Sunday evening after a brief illness. He was taken to the hospital on the previous Monday and death was due to stricture of the bladder. He was a farmer by occupation and 57 years of age. Surviving him are his wife, one brother, Hon. John Noll, of Bellefonte; two sisters Mrs. Lucy Stine, of Oklahoma; and Miss Susie, of Pleasant Gap.

The funeral took place Wednesday morning at ten o'clock. Interment at Pleasant Gap.

BLOODY MUTINY IN RUSSIA!

Six Hundred Killed and Wounded in Fierce Fight

A CITY IN A PANIC

Rebels Were Joined by Artillery and Captured the Sveaborg Fortress —Said to Have Been a Gigantic Military Conspiracy.

FORTRESS IN HANDS OF MUTINERS

St. Petersburg, Aug. 1.—No report of the suspension of the great revolt of the garrison at Sveaborg fortress, "the Gibraltar of the North," has been received in St. Petersburg up to this hour.

The secondary uprising among the marines and troops stationed at Skatudden barracks, on the peninsula communicating with the mainland, was crushed at a late hour yesterday afternoon by loyal troops after heavy fighting, in which nine cruisers, destroyers and torpedo boats participated.

The sound of firing on the islands and from the fortress has ceased, and in spite of the fact that the occupation of the entire water front by cossacks prevents the obtaining of positive news, it is understood at Helsingfors that the mutinous artillerymen and sappers still are holding their positions. The outlying islands and the fortress appear to be in their possession, and they practically have all the machine guns, quick firers and movable artillery of the fortress.

General Laiming, the commandant of the fortress, is holding on to the main fort on Commander Island with a force of loyal infantry.

A general strike was declared in Helsingfors by the socialist workmen. All factories have been closed.

The last direct dispatch from the correspondent of the Associated Press which has just arrived here was 11 hours en route from Helsingfors. The correspondent said that the "Red Guard," the armed socialist legion, was contemplating an armed uprising to attempt the release of the prisoners captured in the Skatudden barracks.

Owing to the cutting of telegraph wires by the flying expedition of the "Red Guard," which destroyed the railroad at Riihioaki, the Associated Press is receiving the freshest news of the mutiny by the roundabout means of telephoning to Viborg and telegraphing from there to St. Petersburg. This entails a delay of several hours.

The military authorities received a telegram from Helsingfors this morning from Major General Laiming, announcing that the fortresses and artillery had opened fire on Commander Island. The insurgents seized artillery, all the machine guns and took possession of one of the islands. Some of the telegraph wires have been cut.

Major General Laiming added that he himself was on Commander Island with four companies of the garrison and two companies of sharpshooters sent from Helsingfors. He does not give the number of casualties.

Premier Stolypin also has received frequent messages concerning the mutiny. He told a caller that the situation was critical to an extreme degree. Almost the entire fortress is in the hands of the insurgents, and there were comparatively few loyal troops in Helsingfors. The entire socialist population is led by the "Red Guard."

For The Business Men's Picnic.

The finance committee of the business men's picnic association met in the office of J. C. Meyer, of this place, on Monday, and appropriated an aggregate of $750 for various amusements and expenses of the picnic to be held at Hecla park on August 16th. This is the same amount as appropriated last year. Among the amusements will be a game of base ball between the Patton and Milton teams, an interesting game of water base ball, an inter-county clay pigeon shoot, free dancing afternoon and evening and a big display of fireworks at night. There will be two bands and two orchestras present, one from each county, and these will insure an abundance of music during the day. Remember the date of the picnic is only three weeks away and you want to have everything in readiness to attend.

YOUNG WOMAN FRIGHTFULLY BURNED.

Was Struck by Lightning Near Hyner on Saturday Afternoon.

Mrs. Nellie Parsons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Diem, who resides on Mary's alley Lock Haven, lies at the Lock Haven hospital severely burned, as a result of being struck by lightning Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock, at the boarding house of Charles Bittings, near Hyner, where Mrs. Parsons has gone a few weeks ago to temporarily act as cook.

While the storm was raging a bolt o lightning came in one end of the building loosened some plastering in a bed room, tore a hole in the pantry and then struck Mrs. Parsons, who was in the kitchen near the pantry door. She was rendered unconscious and when those about the boarding house reached her side, her clothing was in flames, which were extinguished, after her waist and apron had been almost burned off. Her right arm and shoulder suffered the worst, as the flesh on the surface is burned to a crisp in places. The burns also extend under her right arm, across her chest, and up the left side of her face. Her eyebrows on the left side and a portion of her hair was burned off. Mr. Bittings hurriedly summoned medical aid and a physician from Renovo came down on the evening train and Dr. Green, of this city, and the unfortunate woman's sister, Miss Nellie Diem went up on the 7.55 train. The physicians did everything in their power to relieve the awful pain which the injured woman suffered during her periods of lucidness. Dr. Green returned home on the 12.38 train and Mrs. Parsons was brought down on the 11.25 train Sunday afternoon and taken to the hospital. Although her burns are of a serious nature and she suffers much at times, the physicians and nurses think she will recover.—Lock Haven Democrat.

Hair-Raising Experience.

Albert Metziger, the well known horsemen, had a thrilling experience Sunday forenoon, which he says he would not repeat it if he was offered the entire city of Lock Haven, says the Lock Haven Democrat.

Sunday morning at 7 o'clock Albert left Lock Haven with a wagon load of dynamite for the Scootac Mining company's clay mines, the explosive, consisting of ten boxes of fifty pounds each, being sent up the mountain to Cramer's boarding house. When nearing his destination, and as the horse was pulling the load up a steep hill over rocks which nearly covered the road, the harness suddenly gave way and left the animal standing in the road, while the wagon loaded with dynamite, started down the hill at a lively rate of speed with Mr. Metzger on the seat.

On one side of the road was a precipice and he feared to jump lest he should be killed and yet he momentarily expected the wagon to go over with him, and the dynamite in which case there would be nothing left of him. He felt sure his time on earth was up, when the wagon bounded out of a small bridge, and fortunately its further progress was blocked by the strong railing at the side, which Mr. Metzger insists was all that saved him from being blown into smithereens, as the drop at that point was at least fifteen feet.

After he recovered from his fright he secured assistance from the mines, the dynamite was carried to the top of the hill by the men, the harness was repaired and the journey completed.

Man Rich in Experience.

There was in the city yesterday one of the most delightful of little men. When we say little, we mean physically, for socially, intellectually and worthily he is a giant. This man is Missioner Crittenden, of Bellefonte, who for upwards of half a century has been a distributor of Bibles, an organizer of Sunday schools and churches, and a disseminator of the gospel of Truth, in Northern and Central Pennsylvania. His experiences amid the forests and the rugged hills and the isolated parts of those sections are such that no more interesting book could be written than a volume containing these. His has been a life of sweetness in spirit, of hardship in physical performance, but the old man—and we crown the title with reverence—now in the deepening red of the twilight of life, is rich in the consciousness of a noble duty well performed, while to those with whom he has come in contact his presence, his service and his Christian temperament and demeanor have combined in a fragrance of memory that shall linger for good and glory.—Friday's Williamsport Sun.

With Claudia's Assistance

By INA WRIGHT HANSON

Copyright, 1906, by E. C. Parcells

From the doorway Fitzgerald looked moodily at me from in front of the dresser. I looked moodily at Fitzgerald.

"She refused me," he said.

"I've got to go to Mrs. Whiting's dinner," I answered.

Fitz nodded and threw himself heavily into a chair.

"I wouldn't go, you know, after Mrs. Whiting's niece refused me, so she had to rustle up you."

I glared at him, then jerked open the top drawer.

"Seems to me, in the interest of humanity, you might have staved off your old proposal till after the dinner. I've got to take Miss Whiting in. What shall I say to her? I'm no society man."

"You might talk about me. It's darned strange she refuses me," Fitz responded modestly. "Of course I'm fat, but what of that? Look at my money?"

I turned from my hair brushing and regarded Fitz with surprise.

"She's different from other girls," he went on mournfully. "You never know what she is going to do or say next. She said if she ever found the man she wanted to marry and he didn't ask her she would propose to him. You say a word for me, old man, and maybe she will change her mind about it."

"All right," I said and started for the infernal dinner. If I had been left in peace I could have translated a few more pages of that Latin work I was on.

Why I should have (figuratively of course) fallen on my face and worshiped Claudia Whiting the moment I saw her I don't know. That any man could help adoring her after he came to know her is incredible, but I think I began before ever she said a word to me. It couldn't be because her eyes were the bluest I ever saw or her hair crinkled sunshine—I suppose a poet would describe it better—or her lips red as the roses she wore in her belt. One day since that dinner she told me something about affinities. It may be that mysterious word holds the reason.

What we talked of is vaguely remembered. I know that I walked homeward carrying with me a vision of sweetest seriousness, for that describes Claudia as she appeared that day. When I turned the corner, beyond which were my lodgings, I saw Fitzgerald at my gate, his broad back toward me. I remembered my forgotten promise and fled incontinently. I couldn't face him. Later I stole into my room like a thief in the night.

Next day I went to call on her and to make my peace with Fitz, who had interviewed me that morning. She was in the garden, and I stated the object of my call at once.

"If you knew him better you would appreciate him more," I said and launched forth at some length into his peculiar graces and virtues. Claudia listened, and when I had finished she leaned toward me, smiling roguishly.

"And didn't you care about coming to see me? If it had not been for Mr. Fitzgerald you would have come anyway, wouldn't you?"

To think that she should have looked straight into my heart and discovered my perfidy! I almost let go of my secret. I almost answered, "I came because I love you." And this on the second meeting.

Then because I must talk, and there were some things I must not say, I began talking of myself—my college life, my failing health, forcing me to live for years in the pine forests; then when my health was restored how the woods still held me with their solitudes, so that I was unhappy and ill at ease in society.

"I have quite a pretentious cabin there," I said. "In it are my books and my violin. Back of it flows a clear stream with trout waiting for me to catch them for my breakfast. Nothing is wanting there to make me entirely comfortable."

My face grew hot, for all at once I realized there was a want—a void—to be filled. That if I went back to my cabin now it would be as lacking as the body whose soul is not within.

"I was born and bred in the woods!" exclaimed Claudia. "The stars look closer and bigger than they do in the cities of the lowlands. Up there in the mountains are ferny nooks and manzanita; there is water cress which makes me hungry this minute. Oh, I know about the woods!" Her blue eyes were shining like the stars of which she spoke.

Then she asked me about my books, and I told her of my published ones and those in contemplation—dry old tomes—why should I have supposed that they would interest a young creature like her?

But I rambled on, lost in her sweet companionship, till the sun suddenly dropped out of sight, and I saw her shiver in the breeze that stirred the poplars. Then I remembered Fitz.

"Do give him another chance," I said perfunctorily as I rose to go. She looked at me seriously, but made no answer.

For the greater part of a month Fitz was away from town, and I saw Claudia nearly every day. Before going he asked my promise to say a word in his favor every time I saw her. There are limits to the duties of friendship, but I promised because I felt that he would make her a good husband. He was an honorable man and had more money than he knew what to do with.

She was such a bewildering little creature, was Claudia. At the first meeting she was so sweetly serious. She had told me since that she was frightened to death of me because I knew so much. Fancy it! The day she told me, though, she was bubbling over with laughter, and I suspect she was poking fun at me in her irrepressible way. Then there was the morning when we walked together to church and she talked so quietly of holy things, and there was that last afternoon in the garden before Fitz came home.

That day it was the hardest of all to forget myself and remember Fitz. Sometimes when the tenderness of my heart would creep into my words little spots of color would come and go in her girlish face. I scarcely saw her eyes that day, the white lids drooped so insistently over their blue beauty. At last I pulled myself together with the thought that he could do so much more for her than I, even if she could bring herself to think of me at all, and made my last earnest speech for him.

She frowned a little, then she smiled and looked thoughtful.

"I think I shall have to teach you to read poetry," she said.

"Will you?" I asked eagerly.

"Begin on 'The Courtship of Miles Standish,' then," she answered and ran, laughing, up the walk.

"I did the best I could for you, Fitz," I told him when he returned that evening. And I rehearsed the last speech in full.

"What did she say?" he demanded.

"Why—she didn't say anything to that. She told me—or hinted—that my education was deficient because I had little knowledge of poetry, and she told me to begin on 'The Courtship of Miles Standish.'"

Fitz looked at me mournfully. "That's my finish then. Have you read it?"

"I was just beginning."

Fitz walked heavily from the room, and I took up my new Longfellow.

Short of stature he was, but strongly built and athletic;
Brown as a nut was his face, but his russet beard was already
Flaked with patches of snow.

Pretty good description of myself, I thought. Not exactly patches, but there were certainly threads of gray. I read on till the speech was finished, the egotistical words of Miles Standish; then I bowed my head in shame and anger. I had talked steadily of myself and my work, but she had led me on. She had no right to call me down so. Tomorrow I would go back to my cabin and forget, but yet I knew I should always remember. I was still brooding when Fitz came back.

"I don't blame you, old man," he began. "Probably you'll make her happier; but, Lord, look at my money!"

I blinked at him as he settled down.

"Neat way she had of bringing matters to a focus," he went on, picking up my book which lay face downward on the table. "Why, darned if I believe you've read it all!"

"I've read enough," I said resentfully. "I read what she thinks of me."

One moment that blessed Fitz gazed at me, then in words of one syllable he gave me the gist of that poem—made me to understand that my Claudia was impersonating the Puritan maiden in her immortal speech, "Why don't you speak for yourself, John?"

And to think I ever had deemed Fitzgerald stupid!

I found my blessed girl in the garden, but she did not hear my approach. She was on tiptoe, trying to reach a rose which swung above her head.

"I have come to speak for myself, Claudia," I said.

The dear hands ceased from their quest to hide the blushes of her sweet face. Her girlish form trembled.

"You think me bold!" she cried apprehensively.

It was such a glorious affair to prove to her just what I did think of her, and it took a long time. And then she explained to me about affinities.

Oldest Body of Human Being.

The oldest body of any human being reposes in the Egyptian gallery of the British museum. It is the body of a man who was buried in a shallow grave hollowed out of the sandstone on the west bank of the Nile in upper Egypt. This man must have hunted along the banks of the Nile before the time of the earliest mummied king which the museum possesses, before the time of Menes, who was supposed to have ruled Egypt at least 5000 B. C. There were previous to that time two prehistoric races, one the conquerors and the other the conquered, from which sprang the Egyptian race of the earliest dynasties. It is with these remote stocks that this man had to do. Considering the condition in which he was found, it is evident that he was associated with a late period of the new stone age of Egypt. He was buried in a characteristic neolithic grave, with his neolithic pots and instruments of flint about him. There is of course no inscription of any kind on the pots, knives or grave, all having been long before the invention of any written language.—American Antiquarian.

HE WAS ALSO NOTED AUTHOR

The Deceased Attorney Was Stricken at His Summer Home and Never Rallied From Attack—His Writings As Standards.

Philadelphia, July 30. — George Tucker Bispham, one of the city's greatest lawyers and a figure of national prominence through his legal attainments, died of paralysis at his summer home in Newport, R. I. He was stricken with the fatal attack on Thursday and never rallied. Previous to the seizure he had been in fair health, considering his 68 years, and frequently had been seen enjoying the breezes on Bellevue avenue. Mr. Bispham had been at the resort since early in the summer with his wife, who is an invalid.

The lawyer's death robs the Philadelphia bar of one of the distinguished members who have spread its fame far and wide. As a practitioner and a writer on legal subjects Mr. Bispham was a recognized leader in his profession. He was one of the galaxy of great corporation lawyers in this city who have pre-eminence throughout the country. His writings, particularly his "Principles of Equity," were considered standard works.

He excelled in the law dealing with equity, and up to his death held the professorship of equity jurisprudence at the University of Pennsylvania's law school.

Mr. Bisphom had been suffering from heart trouble, and was confined to the house for a few days before the fatal stroke. At his bedside when the end came were his wife and children, Mrs. Thomas McKean and George Tucker Bispham, Jr.

The death of Mr. Bispham has placed many Newport families in mourning. He has been a popular Newport visitor for decades; in fact, outside of Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, he was considered the pioneer visitor.

The funeral services were held at the Trinity Protestant Episcopal church, Newport, Sunday afternoon, after which the body was brought to this city for interment at Laurel Hill cemetery.

Mr. Bispham was born in this city in 1838, and graduated from the University of Pennsylvania's law department in 1862. He had been admitted to the bar a year previous to his graduation, and from that time practiced in this city. He became a figure of national prominence in the practice of law, and was many times heard arguing cases of the highest importance before the United States supreme court.

As a corporation lawyer Mr. Bispham ranked with the greatest in the country. He was principal solicitor for the Pennsylvania Railroad company, the Philadelphia Saving Fund Society, the Girard Trust company, the Pennsylvania Fire Insurance company and the Westmoreland Coal company.

When extensive litigation was threatened in the steel industry at the time of the separation of Frick and Carnegie, Andrew Carnegie engaged Mr. Bispham and Richard C. Dale to represent him. The dispute was adjusted without a legal fight.

Mr. Bispham's prominence was entirely in the line of his profession, as he never coveted public office. His aversion to holding office resulted in a political complication of great interest in 1903, whe he declined to accept a judgeship at Governor Pennypacer's hands. The governor appointed Mr. Bispham to fill the vacancy in common pleas court No. 3 caused by the death of Judge McCarthy. Mr. Bispham was in Europe when the appointment was made, and his cabled declination of the honor caused a stir in political circles.

Early in his career he attained eminence as a writer on legal subjects, and his works are recognized standards. Mr. Bispham's American editions of Kerr's works obtained for him the reputation of an industrious and learned dwriter upon legal subjects. In his treatise on equity, published some years ago under the title, "Principles of Equity," he boldly advanced from the circumscribed path of the editorship of the works of others to the broad road of original investigation. This book gave to its author the reputation of one of the ablest American text writers, and quickly superseded in this country the works of his distinguished predecessors, Judge Story and Mr. Adams. He was chancellor of the Law Association of Philadelphia from 1897 to 1899.

In addition to writing "Principles of Equity," he edited "Hill on Trustees," "Adams on Equity" and "Kerr on Receivers."

JAMES QUIN.

Reign of the Great Irish Actor In the Eighteenth Century.

The son of an Irish barrister, himself intended for the bar, lack of means and consciousness of ability sent Quin on to the stage. He made his first success in 1720, when he persuaded Christopher Rich to allow him to appear as Falstaff in "The Merry Wives of Windsor." After Booth's death he advanced still further in public esteem by what he modestly described on the playbill as "his attempt" to follow that tragedian in his greatest part of Cato. He so delighted the audience by his attempt that after his delivery of the line "Thanks to the gods, my boy has done his duty!" they cried: "Booth outdone! Booth outdone!" And after he had spoken the then famous soliloquy on the immortality of the soul the enthusiasm reached such a pitch that in answer to a vociferous demand for an encore Quin was obliged to repeat the speech.

From this night Quin as an actor reigned supreme for ten years. It was a solemn reign, dignified, weighty, traditional. He was unsurpassed in such characters as Falstaff and Sir John Brute, but in tragedy he did no more than uphold with fine elocution, ponderous majesty and rugged independence that solemn unreality of speech and action which both in England and France was then considered the appropriate expression of tragic sentiment. As in France Le Kain was the first to restore nature to tragic acting, so did Garrick in England by a similar return to nature expose the dullness, the lifelessness of the settled methods of the actors of the type of Quin. And Quin had too much good sense not to see it himself, for as a man he was the rather coarse embodiment of that rough but ready witted, prejudiced but generous and warm hearted disposition, which we admire and respect in Dr. Johnson.

The few of Quin's sayings preserved to us almost make one regret that he had no Boswell by his side. Lords and bishops, clergy and gentry, all were represented in the circles of Quin's many friends, who delighted in his wit and conversation. He could hold his own in an argument with any man. One instance must suffice. At some gathering Bishop Warburton, dictatorial and overbearing, was arguing in support of royal prerogative. Quin said he was a republican and thought that perhaps even the execution of Charles I. by his subjects might be justified. "Aye," asked the indignant Warburton, "by what law?" "By all the laws he had left them," answered Quin. The shocked bishop then cited the wrath of the divine judgment as visited upon the regicides; they all, he said (though it is not strictly true), had come to violent ends. "I would not advise your lordship," said Quin, "to make use of that inference, for if I am not mistaken that was the case with the twelve apostles." Horace Walpole greatly admired this instance of the player's readiness and aptness of retort.—H. B. Irving in Fortnightly Review.

Annapolis, Md., July 30.—The body of Midshipman K. B. The body was accompanied by the youth's mother and his brothers. There was a short private service held at the hospital, and the usual military honors were accorded the remains of the dead midshipman. A military escort, consisting of members of the two classes now at the academy and a squad of marines, accompanied the body to the station, where three volleys were fired and "taps" blown over the flag-draped coffin. Eight sailors acted as body bearers.

Derivation of "Whit" Sunday.

A perennial problem is that about the etymology of Whit Sunday, and the supporters of Whitsunday could speak more confidently with their adversaries if they remembered that the Welsh call the anniversary "Sulgwyn," which means "White Sun." This title preserves the Druidic tradition that the sun about this time turns white. No doubt the old British belief arose from the peculiar white glare of the sunlight reflected from the hawthorn blossoms, which must have been far more frappant when south Britain was one vast forest and a thorn fence formed the fortification of every village. The pagan festival of the White Sun possibly developed into the "Whitsun Ales."—Westminster Gazette.

STRANGE ADVICE!

¶In our Almanac for many years past we have given unusual advice to those afflicted with coughs, colds, throat or lung troubles or consumption. We have told them if they did not receive any special benefit after the use of one 75-cent size bottle of German Syrup, to consult their doctor. ¶We did not ask them or urge them to use a large number of bottles, as is the case in the advertising of many other remedies. Our confidence in German Syrup makes it possible for us to give such advice. ¶We know by the experience of over 35 years that one 75-cent bottle of German Syrup will speedily relieve or cure the worst coughs, colds, bronchial or lung troubles—and that, even in bad cases of consumption, one large bottle of German Syrup will work wonders. ¶New trial bottles, 25c.; regular size, 75c. The Dog Doesn't Know.

We were out for woodcock, and as we were crossing the open between two covers our dogs surrounded a woodchuck, and encouraged by us, were making considerable noise, which attracted the attention of the old farmer and his son, and they left their work and came over to see the fun. As this was new game to the dogs, they were rather awkward in handling it. Fred, wishing to help them, aimed a vicious kick at the rodent, which missed its object, and striking poor Dan under the chin, fairly lifted him off the ground. When the howls and laughter had subsided, the farmer's boy remarked, "That reminds me of how dad did for old Bose. He was the goll darndest woodchuck dog that you ever see. One day he got a chuck in a stone heap, and dad and I took a crowbar and went to help him. We pried out one or two stones, when the chuck stuck up his head and dad let drive at him with the crowbar full chisel. Just then old Bose spied him and made a dive, and the crowbar struck him between the ears and killed him deader than Julius Cæsar." "Yes," added the old man, "and the funny part of it is old Bose don't know to this day but what the woodchuck killed him."

Negro's Body Found Along Pennsy Tracks.

The body of William Harvey, colored, whose home is at Danville, Va. was found along the Pennsylvania railroad tracks one-half mile east of Knapp's station, at an early hour Saturday morning. That he had been killed by a freight train was evident. It is presumed that he fell off an east bound freight about 11:30 o'clock last night. There was a rumor afloat at Sunbury to the effect that William Harvey had been pushed off a freight car by some men with whom he was stealing a ride. The Pennsylvania authorities set officers on the trail of Harvey's companions, and as a result five men are now being held at Sunbury to appear before the coroner's jury as witnesses. But the rumor that Harvey had been pushed appears to have but little foundation. The body of Harvey will be taken in charge by the overseers of the poor of the township in which he was found dead, and if the Virginia relatives of the deceased do not provide for transportation of the body to his southern home it will be disposed of according to law covering cases of that kind. The body is quite badly mangled, showing that Harvey must have been rolled under the wheels.

THE WOMAN WHO COUGHED.

Catarrh had nearly ruined me. It had eaten away the partition in my nose; produced Asthma, Bronchitis, Rheumatism; ruined my stomach; in fact, gone all through my system. Then Grip finished me. I was a wreck; took cold at nothing; and coughed day and night. The doctors dosed me with opium and quinine. No good. Cough "cures"? Bah! Then Brazilian Balm renovated me. Killed every germ. Took 10 $1.00 bottles. Now I'm like a girl of 18.

EDITORIAL.

"Rev. Swallow's knowledge of practical politics ought to tell him that either Mr. Emery or Senator Penrose will be govenor of Pennsylvania. And it looks though the reverend gentleman is quite willing that the "Boy" shall maintain his hold on the state.

The above item is from the Altoona Times. It is a good sample of the way in which the great aggregation of bunco steerers in this State are endeavoring to delude the people If Edwin S. Stuart is elected govenor, Penrose will not be govenor. He is a man of character and has said so. In the meantime the politicians who pull the strings are demanding that Emery must not talk A pretty spectacle, isn't it?

It is doubtful if a single one of the men who are demanding the retirement of State Chairman W. R. Andrews from the position would turn in and support the ticket if he were to retire. Let the enemies of Mr. Andrews howl. His enemies are the enimies of the Republican party. They are against us under any circumstances. Why pay any attention to their demands? If there is a candidate on the Republican ticket so ungrateful and so weakkneed as to be unwilling to accept the chairman elected by the unanimous vote of the state convention which also nominated him, let him get off the ticket and make way for some man who is worthy of the place and the confidence of his party. Mr. Andrews is good enough Republican for the great body of loyal Republicans throughout the state and all this talk about his retiring ought to be heard no more of unless it be from camp of the enemy, were it the will be taken for just what it is worth, and that is nothing.

Russel Sage, the veteran financier whose death occurred recently, was one of the most conspicuous figures to his generation in the American financial world. Possessed by ability of a high order, he succeeded in accumulating an immense fortune and he knew how to take care of it. He was one of the few of our very wealthy men who succeeded in going through life without stirring up much enmity and his career was a peaceful one. Sage never posed as a philanthropist, yet it is said he was a liberal giver to causes that appealed to him. He abhorred the methods of giving employed by Carnegie and Rockefeller and now that he is dead, the world may find that he was perhaps a better man that it thought him to be. There is much in his life that the young, ambitions to succeed might well emulate, although it must be admitted that he made the accumulating of wealth his sole object of life and it is a question, now that his life is over. whether it can be said that it was a success.

SENATOR DICK VISITS ROOSEVELT

Ohioan Discusses Political Situation In Ohio With President.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 1.—Senator Charles Dick, of Ohio, and Elmer Dover, secretary of the Republican national committee, made a joint pilgrimage to Sagamore Hill. President Roosevelt discussed with them for two hours the political situation in Ohio.

Aside from the advantages of the discussion, the simple fact that Senator Dick was a guest at Sagamore Hill and came away bearing the president's expressions of enthusiastic desire for harmony and success in the coming congressional campaign is regarded as a political occurrence which will have decided weight in the Republican situation in Ohio. It has been said in Ohio that Senators Foraker and Dick did not stand for the Roosevelt administration, and this report bid fair to cause at least a degree of trouble. It has now been "nailed to the mast," if these words from Senator Dick have meaning:

"It is safe to make one prediction, that President Roosevelt's administration and the work of congress will receive sincere and enthusiastic endorsement in the Ohio Republican platform."

Whaling Schooner Lost.

St. Johns, N. F., Aug. 1.—The American whaling schooner Era, from New Bedford for Hudson bay, went ashore at Miquelon, and it it feared will prove a total loss. The crew is safe. All the crews escaped, but most of the smacks, together with their catches of fish, were lost. The storm did great damage to fishing gear along the coast, and it is reported that six men were drowned from small boats in attempting to save some of the nets and tackle.

MURDER VICTIMS BURIED

Mrs. Pearce and Her Two Children Consigned to the Grave.

Washington, Pa., Aug. 1.—Mrs. Samuel Pearce and two of her children, all of whom were killed at their home in Cecil township on Sunday night by the negro, Elmed Dempster, was held from the Presbyterian church at Miller's Run, a mile from the scene of the tragedy.

The body of Mrs. Pearce and the 6-months-old baby were buried in one coffin, while the 5-year-old daughter, Margaret, was buried beside the mother and babe.

Samuel Pearce, the husband and father, went to the funeral, attended by a brother. He was in a seriously nervous condition, broken by grief and shock. He has not been at his home since the tragedy, and says he will never go there again.

Officers visited the scene of the murder and carried with them the negro Dempster's shoes, which they fitted into the tracks in the soil about the Pearce home.

Dempster was taken before a justice of the peace, but waived a hearing, replying to the charge read to him, "What's the use; I'm guilty, and there's no use having a trial now." The inquest into the murder, it was announced, will be held on Friday.

"Gus" Patterson and John Rucker, the two negroes whom Dempster implicates in another murder and who were arrested upon Dempster's information, were placed in jail here. They will be held for the grand jury.

Her Little Mistake.

The joke is on a Westbrook (Me.) woman who on getting ready to leave church recently was unable to find one of her rubbers, so she walked home with one shoe exposed to the wet. This was explained in part when she attempted to remove the one overshoe and found she had both on one foot.

Adopted Daughter Gets Bulk of Estate of Millions.

The last place of residence of Mrs. Burns was the Hotel Majestic, New York. To the adopted daughter, Cora Burns Phelan, wife of Alexis Phelan, of this city, is given the property known as "The Pines," at Round Island, New York. To each of her four grandchildren is given $25,000, and there are a number of minor bequests in addition to money for masses, after which the remainder of the estate is given to Mrs. Phelan.

The latter was a poor orphan when the Burns family adopted her.

The body was accompanied by the youth's mother and his brothers. There was a short private service held at the hospital, and the usual military honors were accorded the remains of the dead midshipman. A military escort, consisting of members of the two classes now at the academy and a squad of marines, accompanied the body to the station, where three volleys were fired and "taps" blown over the flag-draped coffin. Eight sailors acted as body bearers.

RAILROAD RATE LAW

Railway Representatives Meet Interstate Commerce Commission.

Washington, Aug. 1.—An important informal conference between the interstate commerce commission and representatives of the Western Trunk Line Association and the traffic officials of various southern and southeastern railroads took place in the hearing room of the commission. It related to the construction to be placed by the commission on the recently enacted railroad rate law. While no conclusions were reached, both the railroad men and the commissioners regard the conference as profitable, because it has brought them into touch as to the various phases of the law and will enable each the better to understand the position of the other.

The passenger traffic officials requested the commission not to insist upon the filing of new rates at this time, as their rates under the new law would be precisely the same, for a time at least, as they are now, and the present rates are on file with the commission.

The Weather.

600 KILLED OR WOUNDED

Mutiny Said to Have Been Huge Military Conspiracy.

Helsingfors, Aug. 1.—A gigantic military conspiracy, aiming at the simultaneous capture of Russia's three great sea fortresses, Cronstadt, Sebastopol and Sveaborg, arranged by the revolutionary military league, was prematurely sprung by an attempt to arrest members of a company of sappers who had mutinied on account of the death of one of their comrades, alleged to have been due to ill treatment.

The entire garrison of the fortress at Sveaborg flamed out instantly in revolt. All the artillerymen and sappers garrisoning the place were involved. Only four companies of infantrymen remained loyal. The mutineers seized 40 machine guns and practically all the quick firers and light artillery in the fortress, but even with this aid they were unable to hold the main fort against the loyal infantry. The fighting continued all night long. The heaviest firing was heard from 10 o'clock in the evening until 1 in the morning.

A detachment of civilian revolutionaries seized the marine barracks on Skatudden Island, hoisted the red flag and were joined by all the marines. Nine cruisers, torpedo boats and de- between the mutineers and the government troops.

An authoritative estimate of the killed and wounded cannot be obtained, but the casualty list on both sides must be heavy, for the fighting was waged with desperation. Some reports say that more than 600 were killed or wounded.

There are various rumors to be heard regarding the fate of the officers who were at Sveaborg and in the Skatudden barracks. According to one rumor almost all the officers, and according to another, almost all the junior officers, sided with the mutineers.

The "Red Guard," whose leaders were cognizant of the plot, dispatched an expedition by a special train, as soon as the revolt broke out, to cut the railroad track outside of the city in order to prevent the arrival of reinforcements. A general strike was declared, and was obeyed by the workmen of all factories.

THE HARTJE TRIAL

Judge Fraser Scores Attorneys For Augustus Hartje.

Pittsburg, July 31.—Attorneys for Augustus Hartje, who is seeking a divorce from his wife, Mrs. Mary Scott Hartje, somewhat unexpectedly closed their case. All the evidence in support of Hartje's petition is now in. Attorneys for Mrs. Hartje asked for and obtained an adjournment in order to prepare their plans for presenting evidence in surrebuttal.

The Hartje divorce trial was marked by some vigorous remarks from the bench to the attorneys for Augustus Hartje when they sought to explain through Detective H. W. Muncey some discrepancies between the detective's evidence and that of Andrew Fisher, who became confused on cross-examination.

Members of the city police force were called to prove that "Tom" Madine had reported the rifling of his trunk. Augustus Hartje then took the stand and denied the charges made by Madine regarding the blonde woman episode, and that he had offered Madine money to testify that a man was at the Hartje home alone with Mrs. Hartje while Hartje was away.

The much-disputed Helen Scott letters were admitted as evidence. A lengthy and heated argument preceded their admission, which is regarded as a signal victory for the libellant. These are the letters purporting to be from Helen Scott to her sister, Mrs. Hartje, which, counsel for the libellant assert, prove that Helen was a go-between for "Tom" Madine, one of the coachmen corespondents, and Mrs. Hartje.

Marcus W. Acheson, Jr., of counsel for Mrs. Hartje, positively denied a story to the effect that Augustus Hartje had tried to settle his marital difficulties with Mrs. Hartje by an offer of $150,000, and that the woman asked for $500,000.

MOB SHOOTS NEGRO

Pays Penalty For Assaulting Young White Woman.

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 1.—Floyd Carmichael, a negro, about 22 years old, who was identified by Miss Annie Poole, of Lakewood, a suburb of Atlanta, as the man who had assaulted her, was shot in front of the Poole residence in sight of his victim by a posse which had captured him. After he had been shot, there were cries of "Burn him," but the county police arrived at this time and prevented such action.

While returning from a visit to her brother, Miss Annie Poole, 15 years old, daughter of J. K. L. Poole, was attacked by the negro and choked into unconsciousness. When the alarm was given a posse quickly formed, but it was not until late in the afternoon that the negro was captured and brought into Miss Poole's presence, who immediately identified him, crying, "That's him." A volley of shots rang out and the negro fell dead.

State Breaks Record in Paying Guardsmen.

Adjutant General Stewart Monday issued warrants aggregating $147,699.22 for the pay of the troops of the National Guard of Pennsylvania for camp duty at Gettysburg last week.

The warrants were transmitted Monday night to the three brigade headquarters, from which they will be distributed to the colonels of regiments, by whom they will be forwarded to the various company organizations.

Warrants were issued for every organization in the guard with the exception of the First Philadelphia city troop and troop A of Philadelphia, whose payrolls have not yet reached the department.

Rolls of all the other organizations were taken to Harrisburg by General Stewart on Saturday from Gettysburg, and were compared and audited by his office force, after which the warrants were issued.

The pay of the First brigade, exclusive of the two troops of cavalry, aggregated $47,200.03; the Second Brigade, $47,719.19 and the Third brigade, $52,660.

This breaks all records for prompt payment of the troops for duty at the division encampment.

It is expected that all the troops will receive their pay before Saturday, or within one week after the close of the camp.

Bellefonte Outing Party on their Way to Wilkes Barre.

William Larimer, of this place, and a party of friends left Tuesday on an overland trip from Bellefonte to Wilkes Barre. They had with them a new camping wagon that resembled a circus band wagon and attracted a great deal of attention.

The wagon is made much like the big wagons used by the better class of Gypsies and is drawn by four horses. It is elegantly finished inside with everything for their comfort, and has lace curtains at all the tiny windows. The outside is gaily painted and with its gilded sunburst wheels makes a gaudy appearance.

A wagon with a tent and cooking utensils and a buggy and several extra horses accompany the outfit. This is a novel as well as pleasant way to take a summer outing.

Electric Mine Locomotives.

The fact that the application of electricity to nearly every form of industry not only increases the output but decreases the cost of production, has long since been generally accepted and demonstrated by actual results obtained. This is none the less true as applied to the mining and milling of minerals in all countries, though the saving would of course be greater where labor is very expensive were it not for the fact that more laborers are necessary to accomplish the same operations in some localities than in others. Not only does modern machinery greatly reduce the number of employees necessary, but it also eliminates the personal equation, thereby resulting in a more uniform product and stable output. A very good example of this is found in a Mexican mine, which recently installed some electric mining locomotives, each of which with fourteen men replaced forty-five men, at the same time largely increasing the tonnage output of the mine. In one case adopting electrical haulage has enabled a mine to double its output and reduce the cost of haulage from 8 cents to 1 cent per ton; this amounted to 30 per cent per annum of the sum invested in the electric power plant—Charles V. Allen, in the Engineering Magazine fo August.

The company is capitalized at $100,000, a large part of which is already paid in.—Lock Haven Express.

Love of Home.

The strongest instinct in the horse is that of home—all his thoughts and interests lie there—and the most wearing pain he suffers is that of nostalgia—the longing for the familiar stall and the well loved surroundings. What wonder that our pets almost invariably return to us from such unhappy experiences mere shadows of their former selves and in such wretched bodily condition that it is months before they regain their usual health and spirits. We blame the man in charge, poor feed, bad stabling, insufficient pasturage, etc. and overlook entirely the fact that it is our own fault and the direct result of heart hunger which no grass, grain or rooftree could entirely assuage. Of course the little used muscles have, from lack of exercise, shrunk and lost their firmness and plumpness; the crest has fallen from the same cause, "poverty lines," appear in the quarters and shoulders; the tail and mane are all out of shape or are all worn away; the feet stubbed off; the coat dingy and suburnt; the skin full of all manner of scars; cuts and abrasions; all these are the effect, not the cause, of the lack of bodily condition which is two-thirds due sheerly and solely, in the high-bred, nervous, sensitive horse, to simple homesickness.

Latest Novel is of New Jersey Life.

The best novel for the reader is the novel that most nearly portrays the people with whom the reader comes in contact. David Harum pictured a homely character and his friends in such a way as to make every reader of the book find in his own community a counterpart of the great philosopher and horse trader.

Mary E. Wilkins-Freeman, who has for some years been known as the author who drew true life portraits of the characters of the New England village, has found a new field for her work. She has written a novel, the characters for which she has found in southern New Jersey. Whether the people of that section will enjoy her picture is yet to be seen but they will surely enjoy the story itself—one of the greatest mystery-romances ever written.

The title of the novel is "Doc. Gordon" and the first instalment will be printed in the Sunday North American next Sunday, August 5. It will be completed during the month of August, in the special fiction supplement of that paper before it is allowed to appear in book form.

The demand for the Sunday North American for August is already enormous, and readers who would not miss reading all of the Wilkins novel should make themselves safe by ordering the paper for the full month.

Mystery of Sleep.

Sleep, with its strange phenomena, remains, after the passage of thousands of years, as much a mystery as it was in the beginning of the race.

Whence comes it? How produced? We has little know the answer to these questions as Adam when the deep slumber fell upon him in the garden.

The craving of the body for sleep is as imperative as its cry for food. This blessed loss of consciousness is the best general medicine known. There is neither substitute nor rival for it.

Sleep is the off-duty period of consciousness. It is during this time, when the entire system is in a quiescent state, that the final processes of assimilation take place and that the body is really nourished.

This assimilation is said to go on much better and more rapidly before midnight than afterward, because of the more thorough circulation of the blood, which carries the new material and remove the waste.

Oxygen too, is consumed in greater quantities before midnight than after it, according to the scientists and oxygen is necessary to the nutritive process.

The Boy Smoker.

What is to be done with the boy smoker? He won't think imperially, or he would know that he is doing his worst for future generations. Many doctors before the House of Lords committee on juvenile smoking arose to tell him this and rebuke him. But he is sure to take no notice, exactly as if he were an adult smoker. Nor does he either know or care how dreadfully irritating he is to older smokers who have forgotten that they made their first effort about his age. Everybody but the boys themselves would like to stop their smoking. It would be a good thing on all counts; but it is a little difficult to accept some of the wide statements of the doctors. For instance, how does Dr. Wilgmore prove that boys are deteriorating through smoking, and that there is no deterioration among girl? Sir William Broadbent says that smoking and drinking often go together. So they do; but men do not usually have to drink because they smoke —London Saturday Review.

Mayonnaise Bowl.

A new mayonnaise bowl will delight the housewife who has failed (as what housewife has not, at one time or another?) in the making of a creamy mayonnaise. The bowl has a funnel in the side of the top so constructed that the oil can go through drop by drop only, which is the precaution that insures a good mayonnaise. A beater is attached.

Nature "makes all things beautiful in their time" Every one of life's seasons, when life moves on Nature's lines, has its own charm and beauty. Many woman dread that period when they must experience change of life. They fear that face and form may suffer by the change. and that they may fail to please those whom they love. The value of Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription in this of womans' life lies in the fact that it assists Nature. Its use preserves the balance and buoyancy of the mind and sustains the physical powers. Many woman have expressed their gratitude for the help and comfort given by "Favorite Prescription" in this trying period. Its benefits are not passing but permanent and conduce to mental happiness as well as physical strength

W. W. MONTGOMERY

Taken In His 77th Havrest.

Few indeed are the farmers who can boast of taking 77 annual harvests, but this record, which he is proud to boast of, belongs to John Emery of Southdale, near Stillwater, Columbia county, who is now 90 years of age, and hale and hearty at that, and able to do a hard day's work. At the age of 13 years Mr. Emery started farming, and since that time has worked at nothing else. He has just finished taking in his harvest, it being the seventy-seventh time he has done this work.

Gypsy Carnival.

It is said that sometime in August the gypsies who are encamping near the old nail works site, just north of Bellefonte, will have what is known as the gypsy carnival. There will be about one hundred tents erected and gypsies from all over the country will be here. They will have a band to furnish the music and a big time is anticipated. A gypsy carnival, if gotten up rightly, is one of the most attractive features in the history of the gypsy camp. It is proposed to make this one of the best.

LOOT TREASURE TRAINS

Held Up By Russian Bandits Near Warsaw, Poland.

ROBBERS GET OVER $100,000

Ten Persons Are Killed In This Most Daring Encounter, Among Them Two Generals and Two Other Russian Officials.

Warsaw, July 30.—Two daring train robberies were committed in Russian Poland, one of them resulting in a considerable loss of life. A train from Herby, a frontier station, bound for Czenstochowa, was carrying money received from the custom house to the branch of the Imperial Bank under protection of seven frontier guardsmen. General Zukat, chief of the frontier guard; General Weltenring, chief of the customs service of Warsaw; Colonel Brzezicki and Captain Laguma were passengers.

Fifteen persons boarded the train at a way station. They evidently had been waiting for it, and made an attack on the guardsmen, who were reinforced by the officers named. A skirmish followed, in which the two generals, two officials, five soldiers and one robber were killed, and Colonel Brzezicki and one robber wounded. All the wounded and dead were taken to Czenstochowa. The robbers escaped, taking $8000 and the arms of those who had attempted to defend the train against robbery.

The second robbery was committed on the Warsaw-Vienna railway, six miles from Warsaw. While the train was under way, unknown persons pulled the danger signal, causing it to stop. Robbers, who were aboard, jumped out, seized the locomotive, detached the mail car from the train and ran it down the line. The postal car contained a package of $60,000 in cash from abroad and at least $50,000 additional funds. The actual amount taken by the robbers cannot as yet be definitely stated, as the documents attached to the money parcels are missing.

The robbers evidently were fully informed that the train had the money on board. They carried red flags, and are supposed to be members of a Polish Socialist party. The train was without a guard, and hence there was no fighting and no casualties. Efforts to capture the robbers failed.

The robber who lies wounded at Czenstochowa is in a serious condition. He refuses to give any information whatever concerning his accomplices.

PRINTING OFFICE SEIZED

Armed Men Enter and Print 150,000 Copies of Viborg Manifesto.

St. Petersburg, July 30.—A party of armed men with revolvers forced their way into the Boussel printing establishment here. They made the foreman a prisoner and prevented the compositors from leaving the building. They then had printed 150,000 copies of the Viborg manifesto of the outlawed lower house of parliament. Strangers calling at the establishment while this work was being done were detained to prevent their giving alarm.

While this was transpiring within the printing works, a religious procession, escorted by policemen, both mounted and on foot, drew up to a church immediately opposite, but no one was aware of what was passing inside the establishment.

A rumor reached the Associated Press at a late hour that General Trepoff had been killed. It could not be confirmed, but probably is a revival of the false rumor current last week.

Peasants Attack Monastery.

Yekaterinoslav, July 30.—While the train upon which a correspondent of the Associated Press was traveling from Kharkov to Yekaterinoslav was passing the great monastery erected near Borky by Alexander III to commemorate the escape of himself and members of the imperial family from a railroad wreck in 1888, firing and cries of help were heard. The train was stopped, and a monk came on board. He said the peasantry were attacking the monastery and that the monks were defending it. He had managed to escape to summon help. He was brought on the train to Yekaterinoslav, whence he telegraphed the governor of Kharkov, asking that troops be sent to the monastery. No further details of the affair have been received. The peasantry apparently have seized the telegraph lines.

Grave Outbreak Among Troops.

Poltava, Russia, July 30.—A grave outbreak occurred in the Sevski regiment, following the arrest of a private of the first battalion, who was discovered with some other soldiers in a shed where the revolutionists are in the habit of holding meetings. After the arrest the entire first battalion, accompanied by a large crowd, paraded the streets in defiance of the military authorities. The soldiers proceeded to the artillery barracks, where they seized several guns and marched with them to the prison, where the political prisoners are confined. At this stage all the remainder of the Poltava garrison was called out. The loyal troops fired on the mutineers with machine guns as they were engaged in breaking down the gate of the prison. Several men were killed or wounded.

ROCKEFELLER HOME AGAIN

Oil King Silent Regarding Trust Suit Against Him.

New York, July 30.—John D. Rockefeller, who went away with Mrs. Rockefeller on May 30 to visit his daughter, Mrs. Strong, at Compiegne, in the south of France, returned on the Amerika.

Mr. Rockefeller was met by J. D. Rockefeller, Jr. Mr. Rockefeller was looking in fine health. He wore a square-topped black derby, a white waistcoat and a dark cutaway coat, rather heavy gear for such a warm day. While he was on the ship the newspaper men gathered around him.

"I am very glad to meet you," said Mr. Rockefeller. "I had a splendid vacation. I enjoyed it most heartily. My health is very good."

"You have heard, Mr. Rockefeller," he was asked, "about the arrangement entered into at Dayton, O., whereby you are supposed to have to appear in court at that place in August and make answer?" Mr. Rockefeller pursed up his lips and made no reply.

"Of course, that must have interested you?" pursued his questioner. Still he said nothing.

"Of course, the people are interested in it?" was suggested. Mr. Rockefeller smiled and said: "I don't think the people are very much interested in that." Then he added: "Really, gentlemen, I don't think I will say anything about that little matter. Please excuse me."

Mr. Rockefeller all but chuckled as he spoke. He told a passenger that he didn't see why the authorities out there should want him, as it was well known that he hadn't anything to do with the Standard Oil company for 12 years.

Mr. Rockefeller, accompanied by his wife and John D. Rockefeller, Jr., attended church at Tarrytown yesterday, as is the custom when staying at the Pontico Hills estate. Mr. Rockefeller was warmly greeted by the members of the congregation and told several of them he was glad to be home again, although he had a splendid time in Europe. Mr. Rockefeller leaves for Cleveland this morning.

STATE MUST CARE FOR LEPER

To Be Returned to West Virginia By Baltimore Authorities.

Baltimore, July 30.—Failing to receive any word from the New York health authorities with reference to admitting George Rossett to the North Brother Island leper colony, Dr. John S. Fulton, secretary of the state board of health, has arranged to return Rossett to West Virginia, whence he came. Dr. Fulton has written to the state boards of health of every state bordering on West Virginia, advising them of his move, and telling them to look out for any attempt on the part of the West Virginia health authorities to get the leper outside of the state boundaries again.

Dr. Fulton advised the various state boards that he might be driven out of West Virginia with the leper, but that he would not re-enter Maryland with him. Dr. Fulton's idea is to force West Virginia to retake her leper and to care for him. It is understood the Baltimore & Ohio railroad is actively cooperating with Dr. Fulton and the leper.

THREE DROWN AT HOPATCONG

Boat Containing Six Persons From Brooklyn, N. Y., Capsizes.

New York, July 30.—Three of a party of six persons who were boating on Lake Hopatcong, N. J., were drowned when their craft capsized through the apparent inexperience of the men who had undertaken to handle the boat. The dead are George Latt, 24 years old; Miss May Klemmer, 20 years old, and Miss Bertha Smith, aged 22, all of Brooklyn. Those rescued were John O'Connor, 24 years of age, whose condition is so serious that he may die; Christopher Merker, 25, uninjured; and Paul Revere, 24, who was taken home seriously ill. The rescued members of the party also came from Brooklyn.

Foreshadows End of Guillotine.

Paris, July 30.—The budget committee in taking up the estimates for 1907 struck out the salary of M. Dieb-ler, Jr., the public executioner, thus foreshadowing the disappearance of the guillotine.

NEW YORK POLICEMAN A HERO

Loses His Own Life Trying to Save a Drowning Boy.

New York, July 30.—In an unsuccessful attempt to save a drowning boy, policeman William Hedderman lost his life in Cromwell creek at 161st street and Jerome avenue, when help was near at hand. Weighed down by his clothes, the policeman struggled desperately to keep his head above the surface, but he was soon exhausted and sank.

A brother policeman, who jumped into the creek in an endeavor to save his comrade, was nearly drowned. He, too, found his uniform dragging him under the water, but managed to reach the shore. The boy who was drowned was one of several who were in swimming.

Some Funny Speeches.

An Irishman who was very ill, when the physician told him that he must prescribe an emetic for him, said, "Indeed, doctor, an emetic will never do me any good, for I have taken several and could never keep one of them upon my stomach." An Irishman at cards, on inspecting the pool and finding it deficient, exclaimed: "Here is a shilling short. Who put it in?" A poor Irish servant maid who was left handed placed the knives and forks upon the dinner table in the same awkward fashion. Her master remarked to her that she had placed them all left handed. "Ah, true, indeed, sir," she said, "and so I have! Would you be pleased to help me to turn the table?" Doyle and Yelverton, two eminent members of the Irish bar, quarreled one day so violently that from hard words they came to hard blows. Doyle, a powerful man with the fists, knocked down Yelverton twice, exclaiming, "You scoundrel, I'll make you behave yourself like a gentleman!" To which Yelverton, rising, replied, with equal indignation: "No, sir; never! I defy you! You could not do it!"—London Spectator.

Her Little Mistake.

The joke is on a Westbrook (Me.) woman who on getting ready to leave church recently was unable to find one of her rubbers, so she walked home with one shoe exposed to the wet. When she arrived home she remarked to one of her family how heavy the foot with one rubber felt. This was explained in part when she attempted to remove the one overshoe and found she had both on one foot.

Weak Kidneys Bright's Disease and Diabetes

Use Dr. Shoop's Restorative to Cure the Cause, If You Suffer From These Symptoms.

Here are the symptoms of Kidney complaints: Urine laden with sediment, brick dust in urine, highly colored urine, greasy froth or blood in it, stringy mucous in urine, unusual desire to urinate, pain in passing water, pain in the back and over the kidneys, hot, dry and itching skin, hair dry and brittle, pain ful joints, legs feel heavy, sleeplessness, dullness, loss of weight, chilly sensations, loss of memory, general debility, irregular hearts, disorders of eyesight, trouble with hearing, waxy skin, fever, shifting from one foot to the other in standing. An improper or irregular worse than none. Most Kidney medicines get their effect from remedies called diuretics. These are practically kidney physics, acting as cathartics act on the bowels. They excite the kidneys to unusual action, they cause over-strain. These diuretic remedies are themselves the frequent cause of serious kidney disease. Don't try to doctor the kidneys themselves for you will only harm them. Their only strength is nerve power. Dr. Shoop's Restorative (Tablets or Liquid) vitalizes the nerves that operate the Kidneys. Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, disarranges and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling all about it, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper.

A Glimpse of Her Bank Account.

'If I had the money that woman has I wouldn't haggle over a child's car fare" said the man with a sallow complexion.

"How do you know she has money?" said the red faced man. "She doesn't look any too flush."

"She may not be exactly flush," said the sallow man, "but she has twenty dollars that I know of. If you will wait until she gets out of the car and watch her ankles you will see."

The red faced man did wait, and when the woman left the car he saw, through the open work stocking, a bill which was so folded that the denomination was distinctly visible.

"It's pretty easy to get a fair idea of a woman's bank account when she wears low shoes," said the sallow man. "The money they carry in their stockings slip way down to their ankles and when they lift their skirts, the size of their wad can easily be seen with the naked eye.—Philadelphia Press.

TheJapanese Dragon Fly Hunt.

In this country children are taught to rather dread the dragon fly—one old saw having it that the insects sews up the eyes of boys and girls (apropos, I suppose, of its alias of "the devil's darning needle). Not so in Japan. There the dragon fly hunt is an established institution among the rising generation, and is pursued with songs and jubilation. Some of the means of capture are the net, a bamboo smeared with bird lime and a decoy female. An extraordinary device used by the children of the province of Kii is thus described in Forest, and Stream.

A long hair—a woman's—is procured, and a very small pebble is attached to each end of it, so far as to form a miniature "bolas," and this is slung high into the air. A dragon fly bounces upon the passing object; but the moment that he seizes it. the hair twists round his body, and the weight of the pebbles bring him to the ground.

Lightning Turned From Man to Kill Dog,

Edward Minninger of Nippenose valley was stunned by a bolt of lightning at his home Saturday evening. He was standing on his porch during a heavy thunder storm, when the bolt came down along the side of the house, knocking him down and stunning him severely. The bolt took an abrupt turn and shot out into an outbuilding and instantly killed Mr. Minniger's valuable dog. The shock was an unusally severe one and was heard over a large territory. Mr. Minninger recovered after an hour or so.

The course taken by the bolt of lightning was most peculiar. It shattered the side of the building, without doing any serious damage. The dog, which was valued at $50, was standing near the open door in an outbuilding. The bolt killed it instantly without even leaving any marks upon the animal's body.

Without Counting.

Archbishop Temple was noted for his mathematical ability. A peculiarity of his power, not in computation or analysis, but in the ability to see a definite number of objects without actually counting them in the ordinary sense, is mentioned in Mr. Sandford's memoirs of the archbishop. Everybody sees three objects, not as one and one and one, but as three. Most people can see four; some see five and even six. Many of those who think they simply see six would discover if they observed the process carefully that they really make a quick count. But Dr. Temple certainly saw higher numbers. I tested him quite suddenly more than once. "How many sheep in that field?" Instantly came the answer, "Nine." Once he saw thirteen. I think these were birds flying in a group. It was the same process with him to see nine or ten volumes in a bookshelf as it was with me to see even five. Given time, without counting, he saw larger numbers.

Sailor's Story of Jungle Surgery.

"There wuz this here black Kamerun savage, naked as an animal," said the sailor, "and there wuz this explorer in his pretty suit of white drillin', and there wuz a Kamerun medicine man with a headdress o' human bones. They stood under a palm tree. I sot on a log and watched 'em. The medicine man put the right arms of the savage and the explorer close together and then, flourishin' a dull lookin' knife, he nicks a vein in the white arm and then an artery in the black arm. The blood come a-gushin' and a-gushin' out of the black arm, and the medicine man scooped it up in the holler of his hand and rubbed it into the nicked white arm. He must 'a' rubbed in a pint before he closed the wound. Transfoosion o' blood is what they call it. They say it saves a white man from jungle fever and from all the evils of the miasma, of the hot swamps, of the damp heat, the rottin' vegetation. They say Stanley had black blood transfoosed into his'n eight times. That is how he stood Africa. I know it's a common thing for African explorers to go through the transfoosin' process. And I'll tell you a funny thing about it. It makes the hair thicker and darker and it darkens the skin a couple of shades."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Hung on to the Plow.

An old English gentleman, a schoolteacher, who some years ago resided in one of the small towns of Ohio, was an agreeable teller of stories, but deemed it beyond his reputation as a raconteur to tell one that did not surpass any that had preceded it. A farmer, having come to the village, remarked in the presence of his friends that he had been plowing all the week with four horses, breaking up new ground, and dwelt upon it as being a very big thing.

"Pshaw!" said the old Englishman. "That's nothing. I have seen in England fifty yoke of oxen hitched to one plow."

The remark seemed to occasion general surprise.

"And," continued he, "the funniest part of the whole thing was that while the plow was on the top of the hill the leading yoke of oxen was on top of another hill, and the forty-nine between the plow and the leaders were suspended between the two hills. And there was another matter connected with it rather strange. In the course of the day the plowman, becoming rather careless about driving his team, ran into and split a big oak stump. The plow passed safely through the split, but before the plowman got entirely through it closed up and caught him by the coat tail."

"Did it tear his coat?" asked a person of inquiring turn.

"Not a bit of it," replied our veracious narrator. "He hung on to the plow handles and pulled out the stump."—Buffalo Times.

A Valuable Agent.

The glycerine employed in Dr. Pierce's medicines greatly enhances the medicinal properties which it extracts and holds in solution much better than alcohol would. It also possesses medicinal properties of its own, being a valuable demulcent, nutritive, antiseptic and antiferment. It adds greatly to the efficacy of the Black Cherrybark, Golden Seal root, Stone root and Queen's root, contained in "Golden Medical Discovery" in subduing chronic, or lingering coughs, bronchial, throat and lung affections, for all of which these agents are recommended by standard medical authorities.

In all cases where there is a wasting away of flesh, loss of appetite, with weak stomach, as in the early stages of consumption, there can be no doubt that glycerine acts as a valuable nutritive and aids the Golden Seal root, Stone root, Queen's root and Black Cherrybark in promoting digestion and building up the flesh and strength, controlling the cough and bringing about a healthy condition of the whole system. Of course, it must not be expected to work miracles. It will not cure consumption except in its earlier stages. It will cure very severe, obstinate, chronic coughs, bronchial and laryngeal troubles, and chronic sore throat with hoarseness. In acute coughs it is not so effective. It is in the lingering coughs, or those of long standing, even when accompanied by bleeding from lungs, that it has performed its most marvelous cures. Send for and read the little book of extracts, treating of the properties and uses of the several medicinal roots that enter into Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and learn why this medicine has such a wide range of application in the cure of diseases. It is sent free. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y. The "Discovery" contains no alcohol or harmful, habit-forming drug. Ingredients all printed on each bottle wrapper in plain English.

Sick people, especially those suffering from diseases of long standing, are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free. All correspondence is held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

BRUTAL MURDER OF THREE

Man Finds Bodies of Wife and Two Children In Burning Home.

Canonsburg, Pa., July 30.—When Samuel Pearse, a well known resident of Washington county, returned to his home from a drive, he found his wife and two children dead and a third child dying from bullet wounds. Who fired the shots has not yet been learned. Indications point to robbery as the motive. An attempt had also been made to set fire to the house, but Pearse arrived in time to extinguish a blaze that had started in a bedroom.

When he drove into the lane leading to his barn he noticed a cloud of smoke rolling from a bedroom window. Leaping from his buggy, he rushed to the front door, which he found locked. Going around to the rear, he gained an entrance, and upon reaching the bedroom from which he had seen the smoke issuing he found upon the floor the dead body of his wife; side by side on the floor a little distance away, lay the little girl and Robert. He approached the crib at one side of the room, and there found the baby, also dead. A heap of combustible material had been thrown together at the foot of the bed, and this was burning. Pearse stamped out the fire and summoned neighbors for help in searching for the murderer. The coroner and police were notified and a posse was formed which is searching the surrounding country for a strange negro reported to have been seen about the Pearse home.

The tragedy has excited the community to a high pitch of anger because of the prominence of the families.

WRECK ON NEW YORK CENTRAL

Express Runs Into Landslide and Plunges Into Hudson River.

Fishkill Landing, N. Y., July 30.—The Pacific express train No. 37 of the New York Central & Hudson River railroad, which left New York late last night, was wrecked near New Hamburg, seven miles north of Fishkill Landing and about eight miles south of Poughkeepsie.

The train ran into a landslide which had been washed upon the tracks by the heavy rains of the afternoon. The engine and baggage car were thrown from the rails, and tearing across the southbound tracks plunged into the Hudson river. The engineer, fireman and one baggageman are reported drowned.

The cars which did not go into the river were thrown from the track and piled up in a bad wreck. A score or more of passengers are injured, and the Highland hospital and Planters' Hotel at this place have been made ready to receive them. All the physicians in the vicinity were sent to the scene of the wreck, and two special trains brought all the doctors of Poughkeepsie.

EMERY ACCEPTS NOMINATION

Will Be Gubernatorial Candidate On Lincoln and Democratic Tickets.

Bradford, Pa., July 30.—Hon. Lewis Emery, Jr., of this city, has sent his letter accepting the nomination for governor, to the state chairmen of the Lincoln party and the Democratic party, respectively. The letter is quite lengthy.

On July 17 Mr. Emery was notofied by letters from the chairmen respectively of the Lincoln and Democratic state conventions of his nomination by those bodies for governor of Pennsylvania.

It was originally planned that committees should notify him in the usual way, but subsequently it was decided that the notification should be by letter. However, the other candidates on the tickets of the affiliated parties will be given formal notice of their nominations at a public meeting to be held in Pittsburg, August 23, and the candidate for governor will be one of the speakers on that occasion.

The Queer Burmans.

One who has lived among them says: "The Burmans are a primitive people. They are a very young people. There are certain marks and signs by which physiologists can determine the relative youth or age of a race. One of these is the physical differentiation between boys and girls. In early race it is slight. As the race grows old it develops. If you dressed a Burman boy of eighteen in a girl's dress or a Burmese girl of the same age in a boy's dress you could not distinguish quickly true from false. Face and figure and voice are very similar. In as old people such as the French or the Brahmans in India a boy begins to differ from a girl very early indeed. Their faces seem almost different types. Their figures even at twelve could not be disguised by any clothing. Their voices are utterly different."

Don't Cross Your Legs.

"The prevalence of appendicitis is an admitted fact," said a surgeon. "I have myself operated on 719 persons for the disease. Crossing the legs is responsible for a good deal of this trouble. That sounds strange, doesn't it? Nevertheless it is a theory advocated by more than one great surgeon. Indeed I know some men who say that if people never crossed their legs appendicitis would quite disappear. You see, crossing the leg squeezes and cramps the delicate vermiform appendix. Squeezed and cramped, the appendix becomes irritated. Inflammation sets in. Intense pain comes. Then—presto—you are on your back, the sweet and heavy fumes of chlorform are choking you, and the appendicitis specialist bends over you with a sharp knife.

TWO YACHTS CAPSIZE

Eight Persons Drowned at Hereford Inlet, Anglesea, N. J.

VICTIMS WERE OUT FISHING

The Sloop Yacht Nora and the Sloop Alvin B. Were Caught In a Treacherous Sea, With Fatal Results—Life Savers Prove Heroes.

Anglesea, N. J., July 30.—Two yachts coming in from the fishing banks capsized on Hereford Inlet bar off here, and so far as can be ascertained eight persons lost their lives. There were 32 persons on one yacht, of whom seven were lost, and 12 on the other, all of whom but one were saved. That not more fell victims to the rough sea was due to the heroism of Captain Henry S. Ludlam, of the Hereford Inlet life saving station, and a crew of five men. It was at first thought that from 14 to 28 persons had been lost, but after an investigation the coroner stated that he believed only eight were lost. His list is as follows:

Bodies recovered: Frederick Fisher, Sr., Philadelphia; Herbert Hammell, Lansdale, Pa.; Walter Snyder, Philadelphia; John Fogarty, Haverford, Pa.; J. Starkey, Philadelphia; Jerry Donohue, Philadelphia; unknown man.

Missing: Samuel Lodner, Woodbury, N. J.

Anglesea is one of the favorite fishing places along the southern New Jersey coast, and has seldom had a busier Sunday. Every excursion train from Philadelphia and other nearby points came down crowded with visitors, most of whom intended spending the day in fishing. The weather in the morning was ideal, and all the fishing boats took out large crowds to the fishing banks. After noon, however, a brisk breeze sprung up and the captains of the small craft hoisted sail and started for home. Most of the fleet got in without mishap, although some of them had considerable difficulty in clearing the Hereford bar.

The two that got into trouble were the sloop yacht Nora, which had on board Captain Herbert Shivers, his mate and 30 passengers, and the sloop Alvin B., with a party of 12. The Nora had gone to the fishing banks at Five Fathom bank, about 10 miles out to sea, early in the day. When the wind began to freshen Captain Shivers decided it was time to make port, and with the assistance of a gasoline engine and a good spread of canvass he made good time towards Anglesea. As the sloop bowled along, the wind was getting stiffer and the sea rougher. Captain Shivers, from long experience, knew how treacherous is the Hereford bar, and approached it with his usual caution. The sand obstruction is about a mile from shore. Just as he was about to go over it a heavy squall struck the Nora. Despite the efforts of the captain, the craft keeled over and was hit by a huge wave. The wind and the wave coming together was more than the yacht could stand, and it turned completely over, throwing the 32 occupants into the sea. As the boat turned over the mast snapped like a reed. There was an agonizing cry as the yacht turned turtle, which was quickly silenced when nearly all the victims disappeared beneath the water. The heavy sea, however, probably was responsible for the saving of most of the 18 survivors, as the waves were so rough that the upturned yacht was tossed about, thus uncovering the struggling victims who were underneath. As many as could tried to reach the keel, but it was a difficult matter, as there was an indescribable tangle of fishing nets, lines, baskets and sails. There was no time to help one another, as it was all that the struggling men could do to keep their heads above the water. One boy, however, Frederick Fisher, aged 15 years, who was found struggling near the boat, was lifted upon the upturned keel by two men who had tight grips on the vessel. In the unequal fight against the elements the struggling men disappeared one by one, until only 18 were left clinging to the boat. After hanging to the yacht for nearly an hour, and as hope of rescue had almost been abandoned, a government life boat, commanded by Captain Henry S. Ludlam, of the Haverford Inlet life saving station, hove in sight. As he came near he shouted encouragement to the men clinging to the Nora, and after some manoeuvring managed to get close to the capsized vessel. He was not a moment too soon, for as he came within a boat's length of the Nora four men, weakened from exhaustion, let go their holds and began floating away. Captain Ludlam threw his boat around, and the four half drowned men were drawn out of the water. Then at the risk of their own lives the rescuers went after the other men and pulled them into their boat. The rescue was most perilous, as the rough sea was constantly pounding the life boat against the keel of the yacht.

A few minutes after the last man was taken from the water the sloop [illegible] Captain Lilly, came up and the 18 men were transferred to her and taken ashore. Captain Ludlam remained in the vicinity in the hope of finding the bodies of some of the victims, but saw none.

Shortly after the survivors of the Nora were brought ashore, another yacht, the Alvin B., was seen to capsize about a mile above the place where the Nora went over. There were several boats in the vicinity at the time, and all but one person were saved. The Alvin B. was owned by E. L. Hallman, a lawyer, of Pottsville, Pa. He and a party of friends were on board at the time.

GROWING PAINS.

Aches In Children That Should Receive Serious Attention.

The evil that may be caused by a phrase is well exemplified by the term "growing pains." Many a cripple today owes his misfortune to the fact that the first symptoms of his disease were misinterpreted. The recurring pains of which he complained, which caused him to limp at times or to cry out in his sleep, were called by his parents growing pains and were thought to signify nothing more than the effort of nature to adjust the growing bones and muscles and sinews to each other.

Of course every child has innumerable little aches and pains, the result of fatigue, slight sprains, stone bruises and the like, and it is well the fond parents should not take too much notice of them, lest they foster a disposition in the child to worry over illnesses. The cause of such occasional pains is usually apparent, and a night's rest or a day in the house will dispel it. But when the pain recurs from time to time without evident cause, or when ordinary romping during the day is followed by a night of aching, and perhaps a limp for a day or two, it is possible that there is some serious underlying cause and the family physician should be consulted.

Frequent complaint of pain in the knee is one of the signs of beginning hip disease, but examination shows the knee to be apparently sound, and so the home diagnosis of growing pains is made, and the real trouble in the hip is overlooked, often until it is too late to prevent permanent lameness.

Although not called growing pains, repeated attacks of stomach ache in children should not be slighted, for they may be a symptom of early spinal disease. The complaint of pain in the stomach, when not referable to green apples or a surfeit of pastry, especially when the complaint is made at the close of the day or during the night, should excite suspicion and if often repeated should indicate the necessity of a careful examination of the spine. Growing pains may be due to rheumatism, which, if not detected and correctly treated, may lead to disease of the heart.

A less serious trouble, but one demanding medical treatment, which may cause an aching in the limbs, is malaria. This is a dangerous diagnosis, for if incorrect it may be as serious in its consequences as that of growing pains and even if the child has had an unmistakable attack of malaria the parent should not be content with that explanation of its aches and pains, but should refer the matter to the doctor.

It should always be remembered that growth is a normal process and should no more be accompanied by pain than digestion or breathing.—Youth's Companion.

Royal Gamblers.

The fascination which games of chance have exercised over gentle and simple is well illustrated in the description by Stow of the entertainment given by Henry Picard, mayor of London, in 1357, when the kings of France and Scotland, being prisoners in England, and the king of Cyprus on a visit to Edward III., the mayor "kept his hall against all comers that were willing to play at dice and hazard. The Lady Margaret, his wife, did keepe her chamber to the same intent." The mayor, having won 50 marks from the king of Cyprus, returned him the money, saying, "My lord and king, be not aggrieved, for I covet not your gold, but your play."—Chambers' Journal.

Gentian Root.

Gentian root, often used as a tonic, is considered in many malarial countries a remedy against intermittent fever. Especially is this the case in Corsica, in that section of the island near the town of Aleria, which is infested with malaria. The inhabitants recently protested violently against the introduction of quinine on the part of the medical authorities, declaring that they would not abandon the remedy which had been used among them for centuries, the gentian root, either powdered or simply masticated.

The Longworths at Beyreuth.

Beyreuth, July 30.—With the exception of one day, which was taken up by an automobile excursion to the Austrian baths, Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth spent the entire week here. They left by way of Nuremberg and Munich for Paris. They will sail next Saturday for the United States.

Finding Water with a Twig.

I have been much interested from time to time in what we must call the "witch hazel tales." Let me add a little to them.

Some years ago I was desirous of driving a well near my house, for a water supply, so that the pipe could be carried under the house and into the kitchen sink, where a pump could be attached to it. I therfore sent to an adjoining town for the driver of wells who came with his tools, arriving about 1 p. m. He asked me where I wished to have the well located, and I indicated the exact spot. A second man who had accompanied the well artist took a forked twig from his pocket and began pacing over the ground, and at the very spot where I desired the well the twig seemed to point directly to the ground. The well was driven in the exact spot indicated, and has never failed to deliver an abundant supply of excellent water. It was ready for use at 5 p. m.

I had often heard of this divining business before, but I had never seen it. I asked the diviner to lend me the twig, and I went off into the fields by myself, and to my surprise it actedly perfectly in my hands. and I found that I also was a medium, and the matter puzzled me very greatly. I conversed with the seer and found that he was an intelligent and cultivated man, and was, at that time, principal of the high school in a neighboring town. He could give me no rational explanation of the phenomenon, but said that he was so sensitive to running water and its connection with what he had demonstrated, that in driving over a bridge with a swift running stream beneath, his wrist would twitch perceptibly when holding the rains.

Iodine for Snake Bite.

A correspondent writes to the Topeka (Kan.) Capital: "For a sure cure for snake bite, take about seven drops of iodine, scarify and bathe the wound also with iodine.

This remedy was first used by a medic officer in British service in India. It has cured both man and a number of animals, it never fails; it is really wonderful in its effects. One instance I will relate. A young man working for me in the harvest field was bitten by a very large rattlesnake on one of his large toes. I gave him about seven drops of tincture of iodine on a little sugar and to make more doubly sure repeated the dose an hour later. His foot swelled, but next morning he was all right. I have had animals whose bodies have swelled considerably, but all have recovered from the bite."

A Wonderful Dog.

Harry Billmeyer, son of Hon. Alexander Billmyer, of near Washingtonville, has a pointer that is one of the brightest specimens of the canine family to be found in this section of the state. Not often a pointer dog will display unusual intelligence knows almost as much as a person further than the instinct to hunt birds. This dog of Mr. Billmeyer's seems to fully understand what is told and he is never found wanting when there is work for him to do. One of his feats is the climbing of a high ladder, turning on any rung that he is told to and descending with the agility of a man. His name is Robert. Mr. Billmeyer has refused offers ranging from $200 up.

—Many men think that because their wives have never had any experience in business that it would be foolish for them to talk business matters over with them. But, no matter how much experience you may have had, no matter what a great brain you may have, you need the swiftness and the accuracy of woman's instinct to keep you from making foolish investments, from making alliance with bad men, and from foolish things generally.—Success Magazine.

—During Sunday's heavy storm up Buffalo Run valley, the barn on the Samuel T. Gray farm at Graysdale was struck by lightning and burned to the ground. The fire occurred about 2.30 o'clock and the family succeeded in getting all the stock but one horse out of the barn as well as most all the farm implements. In addition to one horse seventeen four-loads of wheat, the early crop of hay and some grain were burned. The barn was a large one, so that the loss will reach between two and three thousand dollars, with about eight hundred dollars insurance.

—Since the trolley cars at DuBois have been equipped with electric head lights of a very high power, it is stated by one of the motormen that the wild animals in the woods between DuBois and Sykesville are meeting with many casualities. especially is this true of the rabbits. The woods between these two towns are quite thickly populated with the bunnies, and as it is a well known fact that they have a propensity for roaming around at night many of them meet with disaster. They get on the track of the railroad and when the strong light flashes on them they seem to lose power of moving. They erect themselves on their hind leg and remain in that position looking apparently dumbfounded at the headlight until they meet with death under the wheels. It is stated that on an average two or three a week are slaughtered in this manner.

—If a man knows that his wife expects him to succeed, that she expects him to stand at his post, and do his duty, no matter how hard it is, and that she will think him a coward if he gives up his job because the work was unpleasant, or there were difficulties in the way, it is to foretell what the future of that man will be.

—What do you think of this for devotion: A Tyrone man recently quit smoking, and his friends wanted to know why. "I'll tell you," said he, "I've been married three years, but never found out until a few weeks ago that smoking was distasteful to my wife—she suffered in silence all that time. Of course, as soon as I discovered the fact I quit."

—Last week one day we were the lucky recipients of two boxes of the finest white and amber honey that one could wish to set his teeth into. It came from the bee hives of our friend Emanuel Noll of North Allegheny street. Mr. Noll takes a great interest in bee culture and is making quite a success of it. Last year Mr. Noll had eight hundred sections from eight colonies; this year he expects twelve hundred sections from the same number of colonies. While one of the oldest, beekeeping is yet one of the newest occupations, and the man who followed it a few years ago with only practical knowledge is now learning the added value of theoretical knowledge. Mr. Noll is a member of the State Beekeepers' Association, and has most of the reliable literature on the subject, and with years of experience, has become an authority in the business.

Auto Business Brings $35,250.

The State Highway Department has issued 11,750 auto tags, for which each license pays $3, since the new act went into effect in December last. Every auto operator in Pennsylvania is required to take out a license annually at the office of the State Highway Commissioner.

Revenue derived from this source is used for the maintenance of an automobile bureau of the department, and for experimenting with the latest appliances for keeping down dust on public roads. These experiments are about to be conducted by Commissioner Hunter on the state roads in Montgomery county.

Commissioner Hunter is co-operating with the police authorities throughout Pennsylvania for the enforcement of the local speed regulations. The commissioner has furnished the police of every city and town with a list of holders of Pennsylvania auto licenses, together with the number of the machine tag of each license.

By reference to this list, the police are able to ascertain at a glance the name and address of the violater of the speed and other regulations, assuming, of course, that the auto carries the tag in the front and rear of the machine, as required by law.

The department has nothing to do with the enforcement of the local auto regulations, but by furnishing the local authorities with the means of detecting violators of these regulations Commissioner Hunter feels that he is doing that which the law contemplates.

Recently in an accident on the York road, near Philadelphia, late at night, the local authorities were enabled to arrest a violator of the speed regulations the following morning by ascertaining the number of the tag on the machine, and then referring to the list of auto license holders.

Thinks Health Boards Should Watch Fruit.

State Pomologist J. H. Funk of Boyertown, Wednesday sent out the following word of warning.

"The season is at hand when markets are glutted with fruits of all kinds, good, bad and indifferent. The good is a God-send. As promoters and supporters of health, nothing is equal to good, ripe fruit.

"I would advise a plentiful supply to be kept in every family. Let your children have all they want. Give them less meat and more fruit, and save the doctor's and perhaps the undertaker's bill.

But what I wish to warn you against is the unripe, wormy, knotty, fungus-covered, immature fruit that is brought to our markets. In several markets I found baskets of fruit, or semblance of fruit, unfit to be given to respectable swin.

"Beware of such fruit. Do not buy it and avoid the man who offers it for sale. I think it is incumbent on the board of health to look after the matter. All such fruit should be confiscated."

If some of the departed saints had returned to Bellefonte Sunday about the time of the Sunday train arrived they would have taken it to be any other day of the week than the Sabbath. Seeing as the writer did, prominent church members hustling to the train with their traveling grips and carrying away from the train arms full of Sunday newspapers. To say the least of it these professing saints should have "their pure minds stirred up by way of remembrance". Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy."
